Scam Marshals on the BBC

Defenders UK aired on 6th October 10am

The Scam Marshal initiative had some great publicity on a consumer program on the BBC last month.

It highlighted the great work that Scam Marshals are continuing to do throughout the UK. The segment, which can be found on our YouTube channel (just search for Friends Against Scams on YouTube), concentrated on the Scam Marshal Thomas who has turned his experience with scams into a positive. He sends his mail into the team for investigation.

There is also an interview with the head of the National Trading Standards Scams Team Louise Baxter MBE talking about how consumers in the UK are targeted and what we can all do to help raise awareness and prevent people from future victimisation.

Scam Text Messages

Recent research by the UK's telecoms regulator has revealed that almost 45 million people received at least one scam text or call in the last three months.

Landline calls continued to be a threat for older people, with 61% of over-75s saying they had received a potential scam call.

"Stay alert to any unsolicited contact. Put the phone down if you have any suspicion that it is a scam call, and don't click on any links in text messages you're unsure about." – Ofcom spokesperson

- If you're purchasing goods and services from a company or person you don't know and trust, carry out some research first. Look up reviews of the company and ask trusted friends and family members if they have heard of it before
- Be wary of unsolicited emails and texts offering questionably good deals, and never respond to messages that ask for your personal and financial details.
- Avoid paying for goods and services by bank transfer as that offers you little protection if you become a victim of fraud. Instead, use a credit card or payment service such as PayPal if possible.
